- 2 Canceled Booking but No Refund Many travelers cancel flights or hotels within the allowed window but never receive their refund. This is one of the most common dispute reasons.
- 3 Duplicate or Incorrect Charges Being charged twice for the same reservation or billed more than the agreed amount can justify a dispute.
- 4 Service Not Provided If a hotel, airline, or car rental provider failed to deliver the service (for example, the hotel was closed or the flight was canceled without rebooking), you may be eligible for a refund.

The good news is that an Frontier dispute is usually manageable if you act quickly, keep good records, and use the right escalation path. Whether you need to dispute an Frontier charge, submit a complaint, or understand the chargeback process, the key is to move in a clear order: gather proof, contact customer service, and escalate only if needed. That approach gives you the best chance of a fast refund and a clean resolution. Why Users Face This Issue Frontier billing issues usually happen for a few common reasons. Some are simple processing errors, while others come from supplier rules, canceled trips, or misunderstandings about refund policies. A traveler may see a wrong charge on Frontier because of a duplicate transaction, a hotel no-show fee, a partially refunded booking, or a flight change handled by the airline rather than Frontier. In other cases, the issue may be a timing delay, where a pending charge or authorization hold looks like a completed payment.
